Hunts for Lévensky, Who Rescued Him When He Was Forced Down in Siberia

PICK UP FAINT SIGNALS

Four Other Northern Flyers,
Including Joe Crosson,
Join in Hunt

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Aug. 16—(INS)—With hardly more than a nap after his fourteen-hour headlong dash up the coast, Jimmie Matten took to the air again at dawn today to pay back an old debt.

Flying his huge Lockheed-Electra plane, Matten went aloft into the Arctic wastes in search of Sigismund Levenevsky and five Soviet companions, lost in the third Russian transpolar aerial expedition.

It was Levenevsky, "The Russian Lindbergh" who rescued Matten when he was forced down in Siberia on an around the world flight several years ago.

Hope that the Russian flyers were still alive after radio stations picked up faint signals from their plane, spurred Matten to make the long hop from Oakland, Calif. He was joined by four other northern flyers including the noted Joe Crosson in scouring the frozen Northland for his old friend.

Matten streaked the distance from California in amazing time and reported the trip was uneventful. H. S. (Hank) Jones accompanied him as navigator.

The searchers planned to spend the long Arctic day cruising over the ice floes and rugged Endicott ranges in quest of the Russian plane. Mean-

Performance of "Kempy" Meets With Approval

ANDALUSIA, Aug. 16—With the performance of "Kempy" at King Hall, here, Friday evening, the Kings Theatre Guild may well be proud for having assumed complete charge of their production. It marked the first time that a play was directed by a member of the club, Axel Kleinsorg, and the results were very gratifying to members and audience.

Before a full house the Andalusia thespians again proved their well-earned reputation of being one of the finest Summer theatre groups in Bucks county.

By far the most outstanding performance of the evening was that of Ernest Orazzi, a Bristolian, in the role of "Dad" Bence. Orazzi developed this comedy role to a point of spontaneity and polish that was outstanding.

Austin Larsen, in the feature role of "Kempy," did an excellent job of this character. His likeable personality in the play scored with the audience. Hilda Leversidge and Helen Zelinsky, both well known for their excellent character portrayals, gave capital performances in the roles of the daughters, Jane and Ruth Bence.

A very noticeable improvement was shown in the performance of Daisy Barnett who, as "Ma" Bence, excelled her work in the production "For Pete's Sake," the first offering of the Guild this season.

Ethel Hartman, although somewhat restrained in the opening scenes of the play, also turned in a fine character portrayal in her role of the daughter, Kate. William Lange's work in the play was also above the average. One of the most polished performances of the evening was that of Walter Zelinsky, who, as Ben Wade, raised the role from mediocrity to one of major significance.

The entire production was one of the best to be presented by the Guild. In spite of a warm evening the play enjoyed a very fine and receptive audience.

Others of the Guild who were active in the production included: Dorothy Settle, Dorothy Leversidge, Alice Freiter, Louis Hartman, Horace Murray, John Ferguson, Elsie Wright, Dorothy Wenner, Archie Lummis, Mrs. Louis Hartman and Virginia Murray.

A meeting of the Kings Theatre Guild will be held on Friday of this week at the home of Dorothy Settle, Andalusia. Selection of the third and final play of the season will be made at this meeting.

NEARLY $3500 SCHOOL TAX DUE IN NEWTOWN BORO'

Audit Shows That More Than
One-Third Fail To Pay Tax

HANDICAPS DISTRICT

NEWTOWN, Aug. 16—The auditors' report of the finances of the Newtown school district presents some interesting facts in regard to taxes.

The growing amount of real estate taxes in arrears is causing those responsible with school administration lively concern.

Unpaid real estate tax for 1934 is $505.41; for 1935, $983.67, and for 1936, $2041.45. With the assessed valuation of real estate set at $1,424,400, this is nearly 1½ mills of taxation that remains unpaid in a tax rate of 11 mills.

To put it another way, it is a sufficient amount of money to buy the necessary equipment to install domestic science and vocational training courses, something in which the Newtown schools lag behind the surrounding schools.

But this $2041.45 is only the unpaid real estate tax. Examination of the audit shows that a per capita tax of $3861 was levied but only $2414.35 paid. Here $1446.65 or an amount equal to another mill of tax is unpaid. Since the per capita tax is $3, it follows that 482 out of 1287 taxables have neglected to make their contribution toward educating the youth of the town. Or in other words 37% of the taxpayers of Newtown are unable or unwilling to raise $3 for educational purposes.

Total receipts for the year were $36,058.43 of which $18,693.68 was from taxes; $8,324.50 from State appropriation; $1616.11 from tuition of non-resident pupils. The largest item of expense of course was for instructors and supervision, $20,061.57. Other sizable items were $1211.31 for supplies used in instruction, $1673.80 for janitor service, $638.64 for fuel, $881.70 for repairs and maintenance. Not the least was the item to pay off interest and principal on outstanding bonds for which $3373.78 was paid into the sinking fund.

The bonded indebtedness is reported as $37,000 which fall due over a period of years and which requires 2½ mills of tax a year to carry. And 2½ mills of the tax according to this report is just the proportion of the tax for the year 1936 that still remains to be paid.

"Singing Marine" Is To Be Shown at The Grand

Just what the title indicates is the story of "The Singing Marine," which, with Dick Powell as its star, will have its local premiere at the Grand Theatre on Monday and Tuesday.

Dick is a Marine—a modest buck private at the San Diego base—and he can sing. So his comrades get up a purse to send him to New York to have a try at "Major Rows" amateur hour.

At the same time, on her own, Dick's sweetheart essays to enter her voice into the competition. This is Doris Weston, a lovely and talented newcomer to movies.

She doesn't get by. The Major's famous gong stops her. But Dick becomes a tremendous success.

That was just too bad!! It goes to Dick's head. Spoiled by the adulation of innumerable women, and the fawning of chiselers who surround him, the young Marine forgets his comrades out on the Pacific Coast.

But after all he's only on a leave of absence from the Marines, and when, at the end of his furlough he's shipped with the rest of the company to China, he has a chance to redeem himself with a splendid bit of heroism, which restores him to everyone's good graces.

ZONING ORDINANCE TO BE AMENDED AT PERKASIE

Property Owners Find Difficulty
In Conforming To the Law On Rear of Tracts

OTHER ITEMS OF NEWS

Perkasie's recently enacted zoning ordinance faces amendment because of a number of protests by residents over a clause specifying the depth of dividing lines in the residential section.

According to the Zoning Commission, the greatest objection with the code arises in the enforcement of that part which states that all buildings be placed at least five feet from the property line in Class "A" residential districts.

Property owners have found it a simple matter to conform with the law as it pertains to the dwelling on the front of the lot, but they have not been able to interpret satisfactorily the clause when it is applied to the construction of a garage or other building on the rear of the tract.

The commission is considering an amendment that will permit the construction of a garage or other building on the rear of the lot, closer to the property line than the present code prescribes.

Such an amendment would specify that all such buildings be constructed of fireproof material because, the commission points out, the clause in dispute was inserted to eliminate fire hazards rather than to enhance the appearance of the borough.

"Recent rains were worth many thousands of dollars to the farmers of this section of Bucks county," declared Dean Cletus L. Goodling, of National Farm School.

"The ground was fairly well burned out and crops were beginning to suffer until the rain arrived," he continued. "That shower, on Tuesday, by far the heaviest of the year, penetrated the ground just the right depth to get the benefit."

While Chief of Police James P. Welsh and several members of the Bucks County Police and Constables' Association were holding a committee meeting in Chief Welsh's apartment at 72 North Main street, at Doylestown, Tuesday evening, two motor cars crashed into each other producing a noise which sounded as if a car had gone through a plate glass window.

Rushing out of the apartment house, Chief Welsh, whose car was parked in front of the building, and who, believed it had been struck by some motorist, found Harry T. Martin, 51, 115 East 3rd street, New York City, sitting in his roadster which had struck a car driven by Louis Bolink, Quakertown, R. D. No. 3.

Martin was immediately taken from his car, which was going north on North Main street and had struck the left front fender of the Bolink car, and taken to the office of Dr. William I. Westcott, Doylestown physician.

Charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor, Martin was committed to the Bucks County Prison by Chief of Police Welsh and Constable Earl D. Blair, who arrested him.

JAPAN WITHDRAWS VIRTUALLY ENTIRE EMBASSY STAFF FROM NANKING; DIPLOMATIC LASHING ADMINISTERED TO CHINA

By James R. Young
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

TOKYO, Aug. 16—(INS)—In a move which may lead to severance of Sino-Japanese relations, Japan today administered a diplomatic lashing to China by withdrawing virtually the entire embassy staff from Nanking.

Recall of Shinroku Hidaka, counselor of the Embassy, and his entire staff, including Japanese newspaper men, was confirmed by the Foreign Office spokesman.

He indicated, however, that Ambassador Shigeru Kawagoe would remain in Nanking, and that "present relations will be continued," for the time being.

Hidaka and his staff are enroute to Shanghai on a foreign warship. Meanwhile Japan's tax-burdened millions, fired by patriotic fervor, dug more deeply into their kimonos for additional yen and rin today as the cabinet made it clear that a protracted fight to the finish is planned in China.

With the war already costing more than $5,000,000 a day, a special session of the Diet will be called in mid-September to vote a fourth supplementary war budget, which will bring the total additional outlay for operations in China to well over $150,000,000.

HONORS IN THE HOME

Housewives need no longer lament that there is no disposition to honor them for the work they do at home—that trained nurses and skilled secretaries and adept saleswomen get the bulk of the glory and most of the more tangible recompense that comes with services well rendered.

More and more are national institutions and agencies recognizing the value of purely domestic activities and more and more is there general indication of increasing appreciation of what the housewives are accomplishing. Substantial rewards are being offered and won in the realms of culinary accomplishments and household planning and decorations.

It is no light task for a woman to plan—and perhaps prepare—more than a thousand meals a year, not to mention the numerous other duties that good housekeeping implies. Modern women deserve all the recompense that comes their way for what they are doing for the betterment of the race. Their rewards well include the knowledge that there is truth as well as sentiment in the old saying, "Man is what some woman makes of him." This includes, of course, not only the good results that follow housekeeping well done but also, unfortunately, the evils that ensue when carelessness, or worse, mark the accomplishments of the domestic establishment.

Housewives occupy a responsible position as well as an honorable one in modern living. Only good can come from proper recognition and appreciation of their place in life.

SWEET

Americans ate more candy last year than in any year in history. The average per capita consumption was 16 pounds, compared to the previous high record, in 1929, of 15.7 pounds. The figures have just been announced by a Government agency of course. That's why they are six months old. It was the Commerce Department.

These figures may be even more significant than they seem. It will perhaps readily be conceded that the bulk of the candy consumed in this land goes down fair throats, so that the average consumption by the sweet things is greatly in excess of 16 pounds, perhaps as much as 25 pounds. That's a lot of fattening sweets for one girl, but the figures are there to prove it.

The 2,054,000,000 pounds of candy produced last year in the U. S. was valued at $309,291,000, according to the Washington statistics. That's approximately 15 cents a pound. Someone must consume a lot of lousy candy.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

By Courier Staff Member

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol, Feb. 3, 1876. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

Three hundred and forty-six tramps found lodging in the town house during the month of January.

Samuel Swain, real estate agent, sold a house of Ellwood Doron, on Washington street, to David R. Carey, for $1400.

The Chancellor of New Jersey on Tuesday rendered a decision in the Yardleyville bridge case, refusing to grant the injunction asked by the State on the plea that the bridge was a nuisance. The Chancellor holds that under the general law a railroad company has a right to connect with other companies; and that the building of the structure on the soil was not a violation of the compact of 1787. It being above tide-water, the owners of the soil were the riparian owners. Even if Pennsylvania had not given her consent, she could not complain of the structure in New Jersey.

Early last Sunday morning, the hotel of Michael Vanhart in New Hope, was entered by burglars, and over $100 in cash, five coats and other articles taken. They also entered the residence of Edgar Mellin, and took his clothes, two silk dresses of his wife and $100 in bank notes. One hundred dollars reward has been offered by the Solebury Detective Company and $50 by the Brownsboro Company for the arrest of the burglars and the recovery of the goods.

The Pennsylvania Railroad is preparing for the Centennial. There is no doubt there will be an unprecedented rush of travel over that line, and in consequence preparations have been made to facilitate the collections of fares, etc. On the 15th, in addition to the regular conductors, train agents, or "conductors clerks" will be placed on all through trains between Pittsburgh and Jersey City, whose duty it shall be to attend to the running of his train.

At the sale of Thomas Roberts & Co.'s livery stable and appurtenances on Saturday last, a horse became frightened, and throwing the boy off who was riding it, created much excitement in its gyrations. Samuel Vandegrift, of Flushing, had his hand badly cut and ankle sprained, and several others received slight injuries.

The Washington Assembly will give a ball in Caber's hall on February 22nd.

YARDLEYVILLE—We learn with deep regret of the sudden and violent death of Mrs. Mary A. Brown, wife of John Brown, the undertaker. On Monday morning, her husband having a funeral to attend, and being somewhat indisposed, had engaged a neighbor to harness his horse. Mrs. B., upon going to ascertain if the horse was ready, found the wrong horse on the harness, which she attempted to remove, she being accustomed to the horse. While so doing, the animal took fright, and ran away, throwing her to the ground, inflicting wounds that caused almost instant death.

1777—Americans won the battle of Bennington, so it's Bennington Day in the State of Vermont.

1863—Bernard Macfadden was born.

1924—The Dawes-Young plan for reparations payments went into effect, only the payments weren't made.

1932—A son, Jon Morrow, was born to Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Lindbergh.

1932—1,000 Iowa farmers struck for higher prices, and blockaded Sioux City and Des Moines against crop shipments.

Behind the Scenes in HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD—Mack Sennett must be laughing over the way the big dramatic stars of the day are taking falls and suffering indignities like his old Keystone comedians.

Herbert Marshall, no less, has to take a strawberry shortcake in the face in R-K-O's "A Love Like That".

Barbara Stanwyck was supposed to throw it but couldn't.

They finally had to fake the scene with one shot of her throwing the pastry and another of Marshall on the receiving end. But it was a property man who threw it the second time.

Claudette Colbert's new stand-in, Mrs. Catherine Rieling, went to school with the actress at Washington Irving high in New York, and the friendship between the two is probably closer than that of any other star and stand-in in Hollywood. Mrs. Rieling's 12-year-old daughter is named after Claudette.

In answer to questions about Tony Martin, Alice Faye says simply: "I am not getting married."

Difference in religion is said to be one obstacle between these two and the altar.

Though he has another picture to make after "Old Chicago", Tyrone Power is already dreaming of the vacation Zaneck has promised him then. The star will go to New York if his leave is limited, but hopes to sail to Honolulu instead. He has never been to the islands and he has a married sister living there. Oddly enough, her husband's name is Tyrer.

The Patric Knowles (he's the British actor under contract to Warners) are off to Mexico to get a new quota number, after which both plan to apply for their first citizenship papers.

Answering Your Questions! Mrs. W. J. Todhunter, Room 401, The

There is a Sherwood forest close to Los Angeles, and it has been the scene of many movie locations, but the Warner troupe making "The Adventures of Robin Hood" will travel north of Sacramento to get their exterior shots. Reason is the local Sherwood forest is made up of live oaks, which are evergreens and don't look a bit like the English variety. Apparently, there'll be no race to the screen between Warners and M. G. M. with a Robin Hood picture. Metro owns the rights to the Smith-De Koven operetta, but no production is in sight yet.

"THE CRUISE TO NOWHERE"

by JERRY FROSCHER

CHAPTER I

A CRASH, and the sound of splintering glass, aroused Taylor Chapin. He sat up, uncertainly, conscious of a dull pain in his head, of a rolling motion and sea air.

The darkness, at first impenetrable, shaded sufficiently for him to realize that he was lying on a bed—fully clothed—and apparently alone in a box-like stateroom. The pelting rain, the rumble of thunder and wind, the pitching and tossing lurches, gave evidence of a violent storm at sea.

There was another crash, followed by a resounding bump. The bed seemed to have jerked loose from its floor hooks. Chapin groped about for a light button and found one. A ceiling light illuminated the stateroom, and he was amazed to see that it was somewhat luxuriously furnished, and larger than he had imagined.

He wondered, dully, what force of circumstance had brought him on board this boat, and what kind of a boat it was? Made an effort to recall what had transpired in his last conscious moments. His head throbbed miserably, and he lay back on the pillows. Scenes in a night club drifted dizzily into his vision. The Romaine-Plaza? He had gone there with a chap from Philadelphia—a business acquaintance—after the theatre. They had had two drinks apiece, when the police had raided the place. He recalled, vividly, a man at the next table who had swung a chair, drunkenly, with the avowed intention of hurling it at an officer. The chair, he decided, had probably struck him on the head. He could remember nothing further.

This incident, however, in no way accounted for his present surroundings.

Taylor Chapin was a young man in his late twenties, blond, affable, well-known and popular in advertising-art circles. He was Art Editor of the Giant Weekly Magazine. He thought that he had no enemies. At least, none who would be likely to push him off on a boat, after a crack over the head in a night club.

He sat up and removed tuxedo jacket and vest. The bed slid across the floor with the downward dip of the boat. A faint sense of nausea caused his aching head to whirl dizzily. He slumped back on the pillows.

After an interval, his mind cleared again, and he decided to investigate. He stood up and moved—stumblingly—about the room. Pulled out the drawers of the dressing-table, desk and table. They were empty. Examined the modernly equipped bathroom, and found nothing in the way of identification except towels, with the word CAIRMEN embroidered in red letters. From these, he gained the impression that he was shanghaied on board a private yacht. So far as he knew, none of his friends, or acquaintances, owned a yacht. He pondered over the idea that he had been mistaken for someone else. And jerked open the door of the stateroom. At least, he was not locked in.

The cold wind and the swirling rain made him pause. Angry, black waves lashed against the side of the ship. Foaming spray shot over the railing and plunged into the dock. Chapin closed the door, reluctantly. He would wait for daylight to explore further.

In turning, he discovered a narrow door opposite, and pulled it open. A long, oblong closet was disclosed, and in the bottom of the closet was a black leather suitcase. He yanked it out, and laid it on the bed. It was heavy. A white tag fluttered from the handle. There was a name printed on the tag. He sat down on the bed beside the suitcase—rubbed his head—and stared at the name—his own—in utter bewilderment. Then, clumsily, fearfully, he pressed the catch, and flung the top back. Bewilderment increased. The case was filled with neatly packed clothing and other accessories.

He picked up a shirt. It was new, and it had his initials in the neckband. He took out a gray tweed coat and tried it on. Looked in the mirror and saw that it fitted as though made for him. No—he decided, quickly, he was not the victim of mistaken identity. Whoever had wanted to shanghai him had made elaborate preparations. He threw the coat and shirt back into the suitcase, bumped it onto the floor, stretched out on the bed, and tried to focus his thoughts on vague possibilities. None of them seemed logical. He wondered if the crack on the head had affected his brain?

At the first streak of dawn, he ventured on deck. The rain was still coming down in torrents, but the wind had diminished. He was able, by clinging to the cabin rail, to walk—unsteadily—toward the bow. Seven doors faced the deck. In passing, Chapin twirled the knob of each without result, until he came to the sixth. The sixth door opened into a comfortably furnished lounge. He was about to enter, when his attention was attracted by a faint noise. Atop the fore-castle, two brown-skinned men were coiled round a rope. He went forward and shouted longer. The man might be seasick—but he could speak English.

The man mopped his forehead, pushed back blond, wavy hair, and staggered toward a door. He did not look in Chapin's direction, and before Chapin could reach him, the door had closed. A bolt clicked loudly from the inside, as Chapin stood before the door. He knocked. There was no response. He waited a minute, cursing under his breath, and then moved on, aimlessly, headed aft.

A long drawn-out and peculiar moaning startled him. He paused to sense the direction. Wondered if it had come from the man whom he had just seen, and walked back. Stood before the door again, listening, intently. Noticed that an aluat them. They paid no attention, beyond favoring him with a vacant stare. He climbed down the narrow iron stairway and made his way across the Fore deck.

"Where is this boat going?" he demanded, as he stood over them.

They continued to stare at him. One of them babbled something in an unknown language. The other made numerous gestures, and grunted a little. Chapin repeated his question, and both men waved their arms, and rattled on in a frantic dialect that had nothing of the Latin or Anglo-Saxon. Chapin stamped away, angrily. Looking up, his eye detected a man on the Bridge. He stumbled up the stairway—found the one leading to the Bridge, and climbed it.

A white man, uniformed, and smart-looking, was pacing back and forth, leisurely.

Chapin said to him: "Where are we bound for, Captain?"

The man glanced at him casually, and mumbled something that sounded like the language that the two brown-skinned men had used.

"Don't tell me that you don't speak English," Chapin said, crossly. The man looked like an American.

He was answered by a gesture of seeming incomprehension. He cursed. It was bad enough to be shanghaied—but to be at the mercy of a Captain and crew who spoke an unheard-of language, was distinctly disconcerting.

He turned away, gloomily, and started to descend the stairway. Part way down, he heard a door open and shut, and hurried down the remaining steps. A stout man in light pajamas was leaning over the rail—retching violently. Chapin hesitated. Between spasms, he thought that he heard the expression—"Oh, lord!" and hesitated no

A Wise Old Mother

NATURE, the wise old mother, also advertises!

Flowers, heavy with pollen, wave gay beckoning petals to the shopping bees.

Cattle turn naturally to the greener, more luscious grasses, and grow fat and sleek.

Birds visit trees whose aromatic gums attract the most insects.

The mother rabbit, with a flash of her cottony tail, leads the enemy away from her nest.

You who trade your hard-saved dollars for things to eat . . . drink . . . and wear . . . are attracted by cheerful service, honest quality, and fair prices. To find these . . . to choose merchandise designed to satisfy and priced for your profit . . . the wise shopper turns first to the advertising columns.

Here, in printed splendor, is the daily record of a nation's commercial progress. Here, carefully chosen, are the best offerings of the best merchants. It will pay you well to read!!!

And look carefully at the advertisements of the smaller stores. The nectar of the violet is as sweet as that of the rose.

Modeling Proves Hollywood Gateway

By JEAN ALLEN

International Illustrated News Writer
NEW YORK—Posing for advertising pictures, a profession once frowned upon by fastidious ladies, is now considered a leading avenue to Hollywood film stardom.

Among the players who first attracted attention by gracing ads are Ethelyn Holt, Marsha Hunt, Janice Jarrett, Adrienne Ames and Catherine Barrett.

A competent model today is assured a living wage, thanks to the efforts of their professional organization and to the phenomenal rise in the demand for "pretty girl" art.

If she can break the ice of the overcrowded booking agencies, the model of 1937 may soon be on her way to ultimate national prominence.

The glamor industry has capitalized the field of commercial advertising. To increase sales, many once-conservative firms are using pretty girls in chummy poses with their product.

Models are classified according to their height and weight, complexion, bust and hip measurements. Some of them are noted for lovely hands, pearly teeth, or bewitching eyes. One agency boasts its girls "have complete equipment for casting permanent spells."

The girls whose photographs entrance the consuming public have originated national style trends. If a striking model wears an unusual hat in a prominent poster, women from New York to Podunk demand a similar headpiece.

Supply Exceeds Demand

One of the best examples of a style craze motivated by models is the mannish sport hat craze precipitated by Betty Wyman. It was her use of this creation in a cigaret ad that boomed its popularity. No sooner did the conv hit magazine and newspaper pages than women throughout the nation set up a hue and cry for that particular model.

A New York manufacturer of monogrammed pins offers $5 to $50 to any model who wears one of his pins while posing. He offers a similar bonus to models who get his monogrammed handbags into their ads.

Hollywood scouts constantly scan the printed page and billboard displays for possible additions to the filmland colony. The poise and charm acquired in the tedious hours of commercial posing prove an asset to those who receive the celluloid call.

Now that debutantes have been persuaded to drop "free" modeling, there are greater opportunities for the average girl in the profession. But, like the theater and film studios, agencies which handle the placement of models report an overabundant supply.

LINES OF WISDOM

A new odorless onion is being cultivated by the Chinese. Oh, dry those tears!

A novelty for use in Summer-time sandwiches is watercress butter, made from one-half cup softened butter, one-half cup minced watercress, one teaspoon lemon juice and one teaspoon onion juice. (The onion may be omitted). Cream butter with watercress. When well-blended, stir in lemon and onion juices.

Chopped ginger, dates and mayonnaise make an unusual sandwich mixture.

Even the lowly fly swatter has had its face lifted. It is now so decorative that it looks more like a flat flower than a scratchy gadget of wire mesh. The new fly swatters are made of brightly-colored coarse raffia. Some are square and some are round, but all are both gay and practical.

Before a tea party, or special luncheon, soak cube sugar in orange or lemon juice, for flavor service with clinking glasses of iced tea. And don't forget the attractive scheme of freezing a sprig of mint, or green or red cherries in your tray of ice cubes.

Try baking pork chops that have been marinated in a highly seasoned French dressing. The balance of the dressing may serve for the green salad at the same meal.

FIRST WOMAN BANDIT

VANCOUVER, B. C.—(INS)—A spot of rouge on each of her pallid cheeks, Audrey Legare, alias Lamont, 30, was the first woman in British Columbia ever sentenced to prison for robbery by violence.

She drew a six months' term for holding up a men's clothing store, using a toy pistol, and obtaining $10. She was arrested a few minutes later.

BILLY GALLAGHER PROVES TOO MUCH FOR THE ODDIES

Little "Billy" Gallagher proved too big for the Odd Fellows yesterday afternoon on the Edgely diamond as he whitewashed the Odd Fellows, 8-0, to enable the Hibbernians to take the lead in the five-game playoff series to determine the championship of the Bristol Twilight League for 1937.

There was little doubt as to the mastery of the diminutive Hibbernian southpaw. He allowed the Radcliffe street clan but three safe bingles and whiffed twelve batters. For the first three innings, he failed to allow an Odd Fellow reach first base and in five frames he set down the Oddies in one, two, three order.

Not one Odd Fellow player reached further than second base and only two reached this sack. The only times that the Oddies threatened seriously were in the fourth and ninth cantos. In the ninth, the red-headed twirler walked two batters but whiffed pinch-hitter Jake Paul, forced George Ritter to fly out and then Vanzant's peg got Freddie Hibbs on an attempted steal.

A change has been made in the plans of the second game. This will be played on Landreth's field tomorrow night instead of Leedom's field as previously announced. The starting time of the tilt will be six o'clock.

Marines Landed at Shanghai

Shanghai, Aug. 16.—One hundred marines and 50 sailors from the U. S. S. Augusta, flagship of the American Asiatic Fleet, landed today to reinforce the 1190 marines already on guard on the fringe of the International Settlement. ## The Sore Arm Epidemic

By BURNLEY

"Farewell to Arms" is an apt caption for this tale of woe, telling the mournful story of pitchers' ailing flippers.

More noted moundsmen have been laid up with severe arm trouble this season than ever before in my faulty memory.

Van Mungo, premier Brooklyn slinger, has been on the shelf for weeks with a sore soupbone. After pitching in the star-all star game when his wing was sore, Van's flipper really went on the blink. He could hardly raise it, much less toss baseballs with it, and doctors suggested infected tonsils were the cause.

Other unkind persons insinuated that Mungo's arm trouble was mental, and that Van really wanted to be traded away from the lowly Brooklyn. The celebrated case of Bob Feller's ailing arm caused quite a stir earlier in the campaign. Some Cleveland medico fixed up Bob's flipper by merely giving it a quick jerk, apparently pulling the elbow joint back into place, or something.

Schoolboy Rowe, who first claimed he had a sore wing when Joe E. Brown shook hands with him too vigorously before a world series game with St. Louis, apparently has the real thing now, for his arm has gone completely dead, and, along with Daffy Dean, he is on the retired list.

FIVE LEGION MEMBERS ON FISTIC CARD HERE TONIGHT

The largest crowd of the season is expected at the amateur boxing show to be conducted tonight in the St. Ann's outdoor arena. Wood and Franklin streets, as five members of the Liberty Post, American Legion, No. 308, Willow Grove, boxing team pay their first visit to this borough.

In the feature bout of the night, Sylvester Purnell, St. Ann's, will fight the leading fighter of the Willow Grove post, Eddie Groves. Purnell will be after his eighth straight triumph. He won his seventh straight bout in Philadelphia Friday night, scoring a technical knockout over Tommy Tucker, Sigma Theta.

Groves is out to stop the winning streak of the Purple and Gold glover and he is in the habit of stopping streaks of fighters. When Padlo was winning consecutively, Groves gave him the battle of his career. Now he is after Purnell's scalp. The winner of this set-to will be matched with Walter Padlo in the near future.

Four other boys from Willow Grove will be here, and all fight in the 160-lb. class. Bobbie Pierce will have as his foe, Arthur Donaldson, Sigma Theta. Henry Miesel fights Billy Schwartz, Arena. Nick Chusek has as his opponent, George Baker, Kensington. George Huey fights Al Strickland, Kensington.

The localite who made good in his debut last week, Leo Cicanti, will face a veteran of the amateur game, Frank Miller, Kensington. The local fans who saw Cicanti swing his left against James Reilly last week are already predicting him as a coming fighter in the 147-lb. class. It will be a battle of experience vs. brawn. The Bristol youth tired in his bout with Reilly and this must not take place tonight, for Miller is the sort of fighter who preserves his strength until the third round.

Although the semi-windup is listed as tentative, Match-Maker Sammy Mofo is almost certain he will have Sammy Sindora rematched with Billy Boudah. These boys fought the wind-up of the last show, and it was a cracker-jack. Sindora was given a close decision by his margin of points in the final round.

Vince Delta, Tally Sclarra, Jimmy Spinelli and Joe Ferrara are the other localites who will most likely be on the card.

First bout goes on at 8:30 o'clock, sharp.

The remainder of the line-up will consist of Bau-roth, Grimes, Hetherington, Lockie, Dick, Gallagher and Jefferies. Game is scheduled for 6:30, sharp.

while, according to word here the Soviet Government had dispatched fleets of planes and ice breakers to scour the other side of the Pole.

IT PAYS TO READ THE ADVERTISEMENTS IN THE BRISTOL COURIER

First, because it is lower Bucks County's only daily newspaper.

Second, because Bristol is Bucks County's biggest market.

Third, because the makers and merchants who advertise in the Courier stake their reputations, in cold black type, that what you read is true. That is why each article they sell you must be so thoroughly satisfactory that you would later answer "yes" to this, the most important question a merchant can ask a customer: "Would you buy it again?"

Fourth, because the Courier daily goes into 3500 homes in this section, where it is read and re-read for its advertisements and news.

... AND TO THE ADVERTISER ...

The Courier offers a concentrated coverage of lower Bucks County. The Courier boasts a substantial increase in circulation. The Courier is relied upon in the homes of Bristol and vicinity for its news and shopping guidance. A small advertisement at little cost will bring big results.
